

October 13 - 19, 2011

Critics' picks The five best events this week

1 "Stieglitz and His Artists: Matisse to O'Keeffe"
The Metropolitan Museum of Art

Besides being a giant of 20th-century photography, Stieglitz was a promoter of modern art in all mediums.

► Thu 13-Jan 2;
see Museums

2 "Night Painter: Ted Gahl"
DODGEgallery

FREE

The canvases of this painter's painter, created at night, are about the experience of painting at night. ► Through Nov 13;
see Lower East Side

3 "The Study of Kabakov"
Edelman Arts

FREE

Rarely seen drawings by the Russian artist document the period (1960 to 1985) when he worked under the constant threat of Soviet censure. ► Tue 18-Dec 23;
see Uptown

4 Per Kirkeby
Michael Werner

FREE

Shadow, light and intimations of landscape motifs mix with gestural passages of pigment in these latest canvases by the veteran Danish painter, as he explores the relationship between nature and abstraction. ► Through Oct 29;
see Uptown

5 Martín Ramírez, "Landscapes"
Ricco Maresca Gallery

FREE

Ramírez (1895–1963) was the consummate outsider artist, having spent much of his adult life in institutions. This show offers images of flora and fauna imagined in his signature style of nested repeating lines. ► Thu 13-Nov 12;
see Chelsea
